Gentlemen:

Please advise me if you are able to furnish a Plasterline or modelling wax which is free from sulphur. We use this for taking impressions of ancient silver coins, but we are having difficulty in securing a medium which is free from sulphur which causes the silver to turn black. We recently secured a pound-package of your Superior brand, but a dime left in the wax overnight, was quite black in the morning.

If you do not make such a sulphur-free wax, can you refer me to any European brand which you may know to be pure.

Very truly yours,

Secretary
